Founder, President

“There is pursuit of academic excellence: talented and dedicated staff encourages enquiry and adventure, exhibiting a love of learning which is infectious. There is richness in the activities that boys pursue outside the classroom. There is commitment to the society, both locally and globally, of which we are a part. And there is engagement with the myriad perspectives brought into the community by a pupil body that is as diverse and exciting as the great city of Surat itself. Most importantly, however, TRIS is a happy school. Alongside exceptional care, respect for the individual is the guiding principle in all that we do. It helps us to promote the liberal and open-minded values that form the heart of the school, enabling the development of young buddies who are comfortable in their own talents, empathetic and outward-looking. I very much look forward to welcoming you to the school and feel the air of complete growth of all students in domains of academic and non academic.”
